Hoosier Brides to Benefit from Return of Wedding Planner

(Indianapolis – March 16, 2009) Award-winning event designer, L. Gene Huddleson, of Detail + Design, is reentering the wedding business following a hiatus. After a year of focusing on the growth of the company, Huddleson has decided to return to planning weddings, offering brides both full service wedding planning and event design – something he has missed.

“I have missed the personal relationship that an event planner forms during the planning of the wedding,” said Huddleson. “Although I have continued to be involved in the design, floral and décor of weddings this past year, it’s the planning that I look forward to becoming more involved with again.”

Huddleson’s return to wedding planning is a bonus for Hoosier brides. Prior to starting his own company in 1997, Huddleson worked with several of the top event designers in the world. His ability to design and plan everything from lavish social events to intimate small gatherings allows him to relate, translate, plan and design the perfect wedding for a bride.

Huddleson is a founding partner of Detail + Design, Indianapolis’ premier leader in event design, management and production. He has more than 25 years in the event industry and is a member of and past president for the International Special Events Society – Indiana Chapter (ISES). Huddleson is a native Hoosier and currently resides downtown. Huddleson spent thirteen years in Los Angeles and three years in New York creating events before returning to Indiana.
